

The art in this exhibit gives one a different perspective on war and the Holocaust, one that is more intimate and relates to someone on a deeper level than that of history textbooks. Each piece expresses the sorrow and devastation experienced by the victims of such tragedy. The viewers of these paintings can feel their loss in a way that can't be felt through words. Especially the paintings of women, with their painfully sad eyes, evoke this grief.